Do not allow the power of indigestion to accumulate in your bowels, where they are absorbed into your system. Indigestion, constipation, headache, flatulence, and numerous other troubles are bound to follow. Keep your system clean, as thousands of others do, by taking occasional doses of the safe, reliable, vegetable, family liver medicine.

Thedford's Black-Draught

Wm. W. F. Peck, of Raleigh, N.C., writes: "We have used Thedford's Black-Draught as a family medicine. My mother-in-law could not take calomel as it seemed too strong for her. So she used Black-Draught as a mild laxative and liver regulator. We use it in the family and believe it is the best medicine for the liver made." Try it. It is on the genuine—Thedford's. Do a page.

FRANKFORT HAPPENINGS

With but a fortnight remaining until the Rules Committee takes charge in both houses, the General Assembly faces a strenuous two weeks. Educational legislation has been enacted, two of these administration bills having been passed, the one increasing pay of teachers having been left until this week in the Senate. The Senate measures are expected to be made special orders in the House and to be passed in a few days.

Democrats and Republicans joined in enacting the school bill. In the same manner, they are certain to collaborate in whatever good measure is the result of the deliberations now taking place, and there is doubtless an intention on the part of the Democrats to obstruct the measure to put the private and elementary institutions under the new

Public Sale of Land

To settle the estate of R. Ben Scott, deceased, I will sell in front of the Court House door in Winchester, Ky., Saturday, February 28th at one o'clock P. M., an improved farm of 43 acres, lying one-half mile from the Winchester and Mt. Sterling turnpike, 7 miles from Winchester and 8 miles from Mt. Sterling. Has a permanent macadamized passing to the farm. The land is all in blue grass sod. Has a substantial frame dwelling with 6 rooms, halls and porches, stable and all necessary out-buildings. Charn at door. This is an attractive home and needs to be seen to be appreciated. Parties living on farm will show same.

However, the Democrats did not fail to call attention to the discrepancy between fact and fancy when they asked the Republican claim of economy in the alleged abolition of the Fire Marshal and Fire Insurance Rating Board, advanced by Governor Morrow in a widely heralded statement in the Senate. Shortly was the side try in the Governor's special message, in which he said that he had abolished 17 useless offices, and would do away with 256 more, when the substitute bill, abolishing the Fire Marshal, and in the same breath re-creating the department under the control of the Auditor, was reported in the House by the Committee on Re-organization and Reform. These offices, at a saving aggregating $11,000, the Governor had said he had abolished.

The bill passed 70 to 27, on last Wednesday and is now up in the Senate for action. By its terms the fire insurance companies are taxed one-half on one per cent. for their gross premiums, the money to be turned over to the Auditor, who is authorized to hire as many deputies as he members of the Fire Insurance Rating Board and Fire Marshal as the funds will pay.

Representative David J. Howard, Versailles, made a strong attack on the Lawrence Bill, to increase Auditor Craig's pay by $1,000 annually, and to permit him to name these deputies. He said that the administration had not been backward in claiming that it was doing away with the offices entirely. The Republicans had criticized the Democrats, during the campaign and after the legislative began, for maintaining the Fire Marshal, yet at the very first chance they are putting them back in the shoes of deputy auditors, in order to distribute more pie among the faithful.

Representative Will T. Burkhart, another Democratic champion from Shelbyville, made the point that under the constitutional provision, he believed Auditor Craig will not be able to draw a cent of the $1,000 annual increase of pay during his present term. He said that no officer can have his pay increased during the term for which he has been elected.

Representative George C. Waggoner, Scott County, attacked the measure, saying that it was a political bill, designed to fool the public. Only one Republican, Representative Killiter, opposed it. Democrats who voted for the measure said that they did so because the office of Fire Marshal and membership on the Fire Insurance Rating Board had been demonstrated to be necessary to the well-being of the State, and before doing so several, including Representative A. L. Hamilton, Lexington, pointed out the camouflage which had been employed by Republicans to cloak the real meaning of the measure.

A bill which is up to the Senate for action, and is certain to bring on a warm fight, is the measure to abolish the office of State Forester. The Democrats are hostile to enactment of this piece of legislation, terming it a backward step, and saying that Kentucky would be the only state in the Union to recede from forestry conservation after adopting a prudent policy in this regard.

That there is more in the Forestry Bill than appears on the surface has been more than hinted at by Democratic members. The bill passed the House in its present form abolishing both the Forestry and Geological Departments, but there is another bill in the legislature to recreate the office of Director of Geological Survey, to take care of that officer.

What will become of the Federal aid, in the form of pay for the so-called Fire Wardens, during the period when standing timber is in most danger of forest fires, when State efforts are withdrawn, is a matter not yet explained by the Republicans. By co-operation of State and national government, protection of a character calculated to throw every possible safeguard about the woods during the dry months has been obtained.

With only six more states required to ratify equal suffrage and permit women to vote in the federal elections, there is a good deal of speculation as to the attitude of the women of Kentucky toward the four-fifths of the Republicans in the Senate and House in regard to putting forward the State suffrage amendment. This amendment has been pledged, women here working for its enactment claim, by both parties, and thus far the only help they have received is from the Democrats, regardless of the fact that most of the State suffrage forces are Republican women.

Playing both ends against the middle is a time-honored Republican policy at Frankfort. Their little game has been to get their two pet amendments, the one to make the Superintendent of Public Instruction elective, instead of elective, and the other to redistribute the school fund, out on a clear track, and to sidetrack the state suffrage resolution introduced by A. L. Hamilton, Democrat, in the House, and by Senator Will Stoll, Republican, in the Senate. As only two amendments can be offered by any session, they figure that the two advanced by the administration will pass, which would prevent the state suffrage amendments and the resolution for a referendum to the people of future federal amendments from being enacted.
